

"I find freedom in music. My ultimate goal, every time I'm performing, is that above all the singing and songwriting and the hype of music; my hope is that at the end of each gig, in some way, it sets you free.."

With a name like Revival Nona there is no need for stage names. This 24 year old was born into the tropical South Pacific island culture of Samoa and raised in New Zealand; now calling Melbourne her home. Her voice was nurtured in her younger years by the church, like many of her idols and provides the roots for her bold, soulful sound.

Revival made her first move to Australia in 2006 where she first met Jimi Lundy of Northtone Records. After a short stint back to New Zealand to commence her studies in Music at Excel school of performing Arts, Revival was drawn back by the cultured streets of Melbourne to work on the beginnings of a long career in music.

Revival is now signed with Northtone Records and in the studio with her band and producers Robert John Sedky & Jimi Lundy working on her debut EP 'Innocent Minds'. The EP is due for release later this year. As a performer Revival captivates audiences with her effortless vocal runs and earnest lyrics, leaving even the hardest psyche stilled. Her first single 'Beautiful Art' will be out in early June, to give just a taste of what's to come.
